Students Benefit from 'Fuel Up to Play 60'

ADANE's CEO, Rick Naczi (left) is shown with the Clinic Director, Lyle Dixon (right) and the sponsored speaker, Mike Hart, during a three-day clinic in February at Turning Stone Resort in Verona, New York. Coaches were urged to get involved in Fuel Up to Play 60 and encourage their athletes to participate in the program.

Coaches attending February's New York State High School Football Coaches Association Clinic at Turning Stone Resort in Verona, NY, got the lowdown on Fuel Up to Play 60 – an in-school fitness and nutrition program. The Fuel Up to Play 60 program encourages physical activity and healthy eating. During the three-day clinic, which began February 2, 2017, coaches were shown how nutrition education among athletes is essential for maximizing performance. The Fuel Up to Play 60 program is a fun and easy way to make sure athletes are putting their health and wellness at the forefront, fueling their bodies with proper nutrition. In addition to benefitting a school's football team, Fuel Up to Play 60 also benefits the school's student body, as student athletes are role models to other students. It's a win-win for coaches to get involved in Fuel Up to Play 60 and encourage their athletes to participate, too.

American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) sponsored the Awards Banquet, on February 5, which honored players and coaches for distinguishing themselves as serious competitors, academicians, and role models. Guest speaker at the banquet, ADANE CEO Rick Naczi, talked about the Fuel Up to Play 60 program and dairy farmers' partnership with high school athletic programs, including Chocolate Milk as the Official Beverage of New York State Public High School Athletic Association Championships.

One-in-a-Million

By Mark Adair

One of the players to watch this season is Medina WR Jalen Cooper, who is entering his senior season.

Cooper is 6-5 and 180 pounds and has already verbally accepted a scholarship offer to play football at the University of Toledo.

Medina coach Eric Valley says that what sets Cooper apart is his speed.

"Once he gets going, he has a stride that can't be matched," Valley said.

Cooper finished 3rd at the NYS Championship Track Meet in the 200-meter dash. He finished 4th in the 100.

"When he gets the ball, kids on defense can't get an angle on him," Valley said. "The kids we play against are just not used to that kind of speed. He has a gear that most high school kids don't have."

Cooper is a 3-year starter for Medina.

In 2016, he caught 22 passes for 339 yards and 6 TDs. He also rushed 30 times for 403 yards and 7 more TDs. Cooper also returned 2 kickoffs and 1 punt for TDs.

In all, Cooper racked up 1,213 all-purpose yards for the Mustangs.

Medina is a small town in Orleans County, a farming community about halfway between Rochester and Niagara Falls.

"We are a Class B team," Valley said. "We have been pretty competitive year-in and year-out but it's been 20 years since we had anyone go on to play Division I college football. That really doesn't happen very often in a small town like ours."

To understand how far Cooper has traveled to get to this point, you have to understand where he came from.

"When he first came here, you could tell he had raw talent," Valley said. "But he had never played organized sports before. He tried out for the JV basketball team when he was in the 8th grade but his mother wouldn't let him play."

Cooper's family had come to the rural Orleans County from the Southside of Chicago. His Englewood neighborhood had approximately 40,000 residents in about 3 square miles. Englewood has a poverty rate of about 44 percent.

"Englewood is one of the toughest places in Chicago," Cooper said. "You hear gun shots all the time. Sometimes it's just because a kid was wearing the wrong colors in the wrong place."

To move to Medina, a town with less than 5,800 people, was indeed a culture shock for Cooper.

"It was weird," he said. "People here were talkative and interacted more with each other. Kids have a lot of involvement in sports. I didn't have to be so aware of my surroundings like I did in Chicago. It's definitely different."

Cooper's father is currently in prison.

"He was in prison in Chicago but the last I heard he was in California," Cooper said.

Other family members have been, or currently are, in prison.

"His home life was definitely not optimum," Valley said. "There were some issues at home. He was behind in school and had some problems health-wise."

The school stepped forward where they could... but there was a lot of chaos in Cooper's life.

"It was just a very volatile situation at his house," Valley said. "He has eight brothers and sisters. It was a very toxic situation and he would rather run away than argue, so he had run away a few times."

When Cooper was in the 8th grade, the family's house burned down.

"He was left with pretty much the clothes he wore to school that day," Valley said. "Our small community stepped up in a big way for that family. We did a lot of fundraisers and got them new clothes and new appliances. We got them into a new house. Jalen really wasn't used to strangers stepping up and helping out."

For Cooper, this amazed him.

"This community came together and donated a lot of things for us," he said. "It was a real eye-opener. There are caring people out there in the world. Not everyone is evil. Medina is a really great community."

But, while Cooper's family had a new place, it was still volatile.

"My mom was a young mom with a lot of kids," he said. "She really didn't know how to express herself. It always came out angry."

The pattern of fights and Jalen running away continued.

"He would call me, sometimes at 6 in the morning," Valley said. "He would ask me to come pick him up, he was out in the rain at the school and it was locked."

Valley would make the drive and pick the boy up.

"I would bring him back to my house and get him something to eat," he said. "He would stay here until things cooled down at home."

Cooper did come out for the JV football team as an 8th grader.

"He didn't like it very much," Valley said. "It was his first organized sport and he wasn't used to that kind of structure. The rigors of practice, getting in shape, it just wasn't something he was mentally used to."

But, he stuck it out and, by the end of the year, seemed to be enjoying himself.

But, while school was a safe haven, home was not.

Finally, Cooper's home situation reached the point where he didn't want to stay anymore. And, when his mother moved to Lockport, he begged her to stay in Medina.

He had run away one more time and called Valley to pick him up.

Valley, who was getting ready to leave town for a family trip, delayed his departure to pick Cooper up and took him to the weight room at the high school

There, they met with assistant football coach Eric Hellwig.

"I was explaining to Coach Hellwig that Jalen needed a place to stay," Valley said. "We were going out of town."

Hellwig had known Cooper for three years, so he understood the situation.

"He came over to the high school with coach Valley," Hellwig said. "Eric was explaining the situation and my son Jason just spoke up and said, 'Have him stay with us.' I said 'OK' and then I thought I should probably call mom."

Hellwig's wife, Sandie, had two sons and was heavily involved with the Medina sports scene.

"She keeps the scorebook for basketball," Eric Hellwig said, "so she knew Jalen. Also, with two boys, she was used to having a bunch of boys in the house anyway. What was one more?"

So, what was supposed to be temporary, became far more than that.

"Jalen is very aware that his family is not good for him," Valley said. "He understands that his home was not a safe place to be."

After a year of staying with the Hellwigs, the family was given legal custody of Jalen.

"We have joint custody with his mother," Hellwig said, "and we also have residential custody. We can oversee his academics and any legal issues that come up with him. His mother finally agreed with the arrangement because Jalen convinced her it was the best thing for him."

Jalen was initially out of sorts with the Hellwigs. Coming from a noisy, raucous family with nine children to a quiet home was a shock.

"In my house you had to yell if you wanted someone to hear you," Jalen said. "But at the Hellwigs it was so quiet. They just have Jason and Adam. It was strange."

Eric Hellwig says that he and his wife had no hesitation to letting Jalen stay on a more permanent basis.

"It's funny how it worked out," Hellwig said. "Everyone really hit it off. My two sons loved having him and he loved being here. It just kind of turned into a permanent thing."

It wasn't a walk in the park for Jalen.

Medina's Jalen Cooper finished with over 1,200 total all-purpose yards and 15 TDs.

See 'Million' on page 11

"There were some issues," Hellwig said. "He was behind in school but he worked really hard to catch up. He had a few health things to be worked out. He needed a lot of dental work done."

But, as a result of the stability, Jalen began to thrive.

"He was a low 70s student when he came to us," Hellwig said. "He's almost a 90-average student now. He really caught up physically and emotionally."

And, as Jalen began to grow academically and emotionally, he began to thrive athletically.

"He can fly," Valley said. "He's big and he's athletic. He was starting to get some real interest from some big places. Coaches would watch his film and then watch him play basketball, too. His athleticism just pops out at you."

For his part, Hellwig said there was no hesitation on the part of any family member about taking in a child with so many problems.

"Not once," he said. "There was no hesitation on any of our part. We all some somebody who was dying to be successful. He felt like he needed to be some place else so that he could succeed in life, not just sports."

Hellwig also had seen what kind of person Jalen was.

"We have a pretty trusting nature," he said, "but he was never in trouble in school. Every teacher who ever had him, every secretary and every custodian was willing to do whatever they could to help him. Everyone who ever talks with him talks about his Million Dollar smile. You can't help but like him. He is a generally nice person who wanted to succeed."

As Jalen's junior season of football came to an end, the recruiting process started to heat up.

"He was getting interest from Boston College," Valley said. "Paul Pasqualoni was here. Brian Dabol, the offensive coordinator from Alabama was here. Washington State, Rutgers and UConn were all interested."

Even Valley was overwhelmed by the attention.

"I played football at Cortland," Valley said. "So, to have Paul Pasqualoni there was pretty cool. And Jalen was ecstatic. He was very excited about the whole thing."

Despite his excitement, Cooper never changed as a person.

"If you talk to him, you would have no clue he has had so many people fawning over him," Valley said. "He runs our summer workouts and runs camps for little kids. He is a generally nice person. He's so personable. He just loves meeting people."

In the end, Cooper committed to the first school that contacted him.

"Toledo was one of the first to show interest in him," Valley said. "They made it clear right from the get-go that they wanted him. I think that made a great impression on Jalen."

Now, the Hellwigs have to prepare for their "third son" to get through his senior year and prepared for college.

"This was a big adjustment for everyone," Hellwig said, "and it's very cool to see how it worked out. Both of my sons said that this was the best experience that they could have had. They gained a younger brother and it made them appreciate everything that they had too. We have not had one bad situation in 4 years. It's been great."

For Cooper, he feels like he needed a miracle and got it.

"I've had two different lifestyles," Cooper said. "The way my original parents lived and the way the Hellwigs live are two different worlds. I'm the luckiest kid in the world. Most kids that are in my shoes are going to the wrong place or going nowhere."

Cooper doesn't have a negative feeling at all.

"Now, it's all positive in my life," he said. "I'm extremely lucky. I'm one in a million because something like this does not happen often."

He says that he is motivated to not blow his golden opportunity.

"I'm not going to let anyone slow me down or disappoint the Hellwigs," he said. "I want to show my little brothers and sisters that they can get a better life too."

Cooper stills sees his mother and holds no grudges against her.

"I forgive my mom for everything 100 percent," he said. "She was young and didn't know how to raise kids. I feel like she's definitely changing and becoming a different mother."

And, even though he is no longer in Chicago, he still occasionally hears gunshots.

"In Medina it's just somebody shooting deer," he said.

It's In The Cards

By Mark Adair

St. John Fisher coach Paul Vosburgh will be entering his 27th season as the leader of the Cardinals program. He is now the most-senior head college coach in New York State.

Vosburgh has led the Cardinals to an unprecedented string of success the last decade.

St. John Fisher has won 86 games, while advancing to the post-season in each of the last thirteen years.

In 2006, the Cardinals won the NCAA Division III East Region and advanced to the national semifinals, while in 2013 and 2007, Fisher bowed out in the national quarterfinals. The Cardinals also made the national quarterfinals in 2011.

But, while Vosburgh has built a program close to joining the nation's elite programs, it wasn't always this way.

Frankly, it's been a long and winding road.

Vosburgh played offensive guard and line-backer at tiny DeSales Catholic High School in Lockport, NY.

He was named All-Catholic three straight years.

"I wasn't very big," Vosburgh said, "but I guess I did okay."

Vosburgh also wrestled at DeSales, helping the team win a league championship in his senior year.

He graduated from DeSales in 1971 and went on to play football at William Penn University an NAIA school in Iowa. He was named an all-conference linebacker at William Penn.

"We won a championship and went to a couple of bowl games while I was there," he said.

Vosburgh graduated in 1975 and returned home to Lockport.

"I was an assistant coach to Les Dugan at DeSales," he said. "I enjoyed it but I still didn't know about becoming a coach as a career."

After a season at DeSales, Vosburgh landed a grad-assistant coaching position at Pittsburgh State in Kansas.

"I knew I wanted to be involved in football," Vosburgh said, "but after that year at Pittsburgh State, I knew this was the path I wanted to take."

Vosburgh returned to DeSales once again, this time as head football coach and athletic director at the school.

In 1981, he led the small catholic school to a league title and a 9-0 record.

Lockport's large public school also finished 9-0 that season, and the town went crazy with excitement over the gridiron success from both schools.

"There was a lot of excitement in town that year," he said. "It was a huge deal in Lockport."

Just eight years later, DeSales was forced to close the high school, though the elementary school is still in operation - and thriving.

"I was really sad when DeSales closed,"

Vosburgh said. "I loved it there as a student and as a teacher and coach. We had a great tradition there."

Vosburgh had also met his wife, Kathleen, while teaching at DeSales.

"She was a DeSales grad too," Vosburgh said, "but she was three years behind me. We didn't meet until we were both teachers there."

Shortly after the undefeated 1981 season, Vosburgh was hired as a defensive coordinator back at William Penn. He was the DC for two seasons before moving on to Heidelberg College in Ohio.

His stay in Ohio lasted just one season as he was hired back at William Penn, this time as head coach.

"That was an exciting time for me," Vosburgh said.

"First head coaching job at a college program."

He stayed at William Penn for three seasons before moving to Emporia State University in Kansas as an assistant head coach and Defensive Coordinator.

"It paid more money," Vosburgh said. "I loved William Penn but we had a family to think about."

Vosburgh stayed at Emporia State for 4 seasons, where he was the Defensive Coordinator for future Dallas Cowboy Leon Lett.

"Leon was a great player," Vosburgh said, "and we're still friends."

Lett would become famous in Super Bowl 27 when he picked up a fumble and ran down the field. Just before he reached the end zone, Buffalo's Don Beebe caught him from behind and knocked the ball out of his hands.

"I felt bad for Leon," Vosburgh said. "He's a great guy but he got caught hot dogging on that play."

During his time at Emporia, Vosburgh began looking to return to Western New York.

"I told Kathleen that if something opened in Western New York, I was going to apply for it," Vosburgh said.

In 1991, the Vosburgh's returned home, when Paul was hired as head coach at St. John Fisher.

At the time, St. John Fisher was a lowly program with no facilities, no recruits and no hope. Vosburgh was hired just one week before training camp opened and the team, predictably, went winless. In fact, after the first four games, Fisher had yet to score a touchdown.

"In those lean years, we had some good athletes but we didn't have enough of them," Vosburgh said. "Recruiting was very difficult. We would talk to every kid we could but they weren't listening to us."

The Cardinals played on a field that didn't even measure up to most high school programs in Rochester. The field was surrounded by a rope.

"There was a cinder track, no bleachers and a wooden press box. It didn't even look like a high school field," Vosburgh said.

When he was hired, Vosburgh had been told that a new facility was in the plans.

Vosburgh has led the Cardinals to the NCAA National Semifinals once and the final Eight twice.

"It was discouraging at times," he said. "It took a while but finally Dr. Keough came in and got it done."

The new SJF football facility opened in 2000 and it was the top facility in New York State. Shortly after that, the school was chosen to host the Buffalo Bills training camp.

The last three college Presidents we have had have really grown the school," Vosburgh said. "The whole college just started growing all at once."

And, recruits were suddenly taking Vosburgh's calls and visiting the campus.

"We had always been a good school academically," Vosburgh said. "We just didn't have the support or the facilities for football - or any athletics really. The new facility allowed us to recruit a different kind of athlete."

And the wins followed.

"It was an exciting time at Fisher," Vosburgh said. "The whole campus grew. We have 24 athletic teams now. We have 2,700 students and just brought in a huge freshman class. You look at our campus now compared to 1999 and it's way different."

Last season, the Cardinals finished 8-3 and ranked 25th in the nation.

Vosburgh says that was a disappointment.

"We are trying to be an elite program now," he said. "We are trying to recruit kids that are borderline scholarship players. We want to win our conference and go as far as we can in the playoffs. We have never made it past the semifinals but that's still our goal every year."

Vosburgh is now 63 and a 5-time grandfather, with his 6th grandchild due in February.

He has no plans at all to retire anytime soon.

"I'm focused on this year," he said. "Football is exciting. I enjoy coaching and I enjoy being with young men. I look forward going to work everyday. Actually, I've never had a job because I enjoy this too much for it to be a job."

About our Watch List...

mores, juniors and seniors.

What does this list mean?

This list does not mean a single player named will receive a scholarship to play football. In fact, most of the kids on this list will not play football at any level - never mind earn a football scholarship.

The fact is, New York State had just 32 players earn scholarships to play football last year.

So, this is not a list of 4- and 5-star recruits.

It is simply a list of players that, right now, are talented enough to be looked at by college coaches... and nothing more.

This is a guide to help college coaches get started in requesting film, doing their background checks and making inquiries about grades on players that might be able to play for them.

If my player is not on the list, does that mean he's not good enough to play college football?

Not necessarily.

It means that right now, he is not being recruited. But, some kids grow an incredible amount between their freshman and sophomore years. Kids can start hitting the weight room. Kids can start working hard at camps.

Some kids, who are less than impressive as sophomores, surprise everyone during their junior season and become stand outs.

The best advice a player could get is... if you are not on the list this year, work hard so you can be on the list next year.

How did we go about getting the information?

An email was sent to every high school football coach in the state. The email was followed-up with a phone call. After the phone call, a 2nd email was sent.

(If your school is not listed, it's because we received no reply to our inquiries from the coach or Athletic Director.)

We have listed every nominated player from 8th grade to the 12th grade. Hopefully, college coaches will find our Recruiting Watch List a help in finding players from our state.

In January of 2014, the NYS Football Coaches Association and I embarked on an ambitious project.

We wanted to publish a "Recruiting Watch List" for high school players from across New York State.

We hoped to accomplish two things with our list.

First, we want to create some excitement about high school football - create some "buzz", so to speak. For almost a century, the "Hot Stove Talk" has generated excitement about baseball in the dead of winter. Talk about the NFL Draft consumes fans of the NFL in April. Campuses across the country hold spring football games.

We thought that we could do the same for high school football.

The second thing we wanted to accomplish was to get our kids names out into the public so that college coaches will take a look at them.

Let's be honest... New York State lags far behind Texas, Florida and Ohio when it comes to getting football scholarships - or even exposure - for our own kids.

We thought that if we could just get a "semi-official" list into the hands of the college coaches, it would help them in their pursuit of kids that have the talent to play after high school.

Inside this issue, is our fourth Watch List. We have listed every high school football player who was nominated to be on the New York Recruiting Watch List.

On this Watch List are the names of more than 1,500 players from 250 schools from across the state. These are kids that college football coaches should take a look at.

We have broken the list down into geographical sections and broken them down further by school. Kids are listed by position with their heights, weights and their current grade in school.

Eligible players include incoming freshman, sopho-
